INTRODUCING THE NEW

GF-14

GARAGE COOLING FAN

The Hottest NEW Fan in Cooling!

THE PROBLEM

In hot climates, the garage temperature may be 20 degrees higher than outside temperatures, and the attic can be an average of 40-50 degrees hotter than the outdoor temperature.

Because of these high temperatures, the attic acts as a super-large radiant heater, forcing the air conditioner to work harder and drive up energy costs.

THE SOLUTION

The GF-14 Garage Fan and Attic Cooler will help lower the air conditioner load and reduce energy consumption.

The GF-14 Garage Fan pulls outside air in through the vents installed in the garage door and sends this air into the attic forcing the super-heated air out the existing attic vents. This cools the garage up to 20 degrees and the attic up to 40 degrees.
